

Sticky Trackers

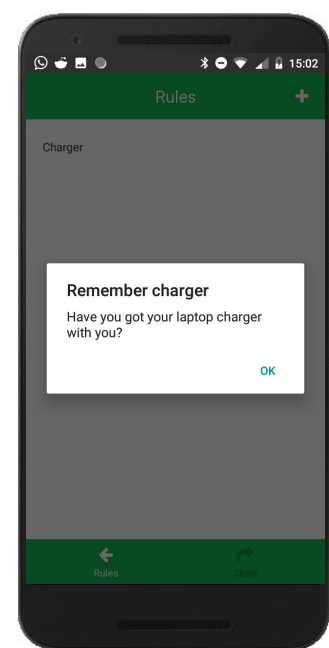

We present Sticky Trackers, a new system for tracking your possessions. The users can track items by attaching the tracking stickers to personal items and constructing their own customisable rules which can incorporate the time, your location and even the weather. Our application can then check the distance between the user's phone and their tracker, and complete the designated action.

This screen displays all of the user's constructed rules

Making a rule consists of choosing when you want it to happen and what it should do

When the conditions of a rule are met, the application executes the pre-configured task.

You can also share rules with your friends by using the store
